The Project

Global Correspondent Banking 1870-2000 is a major 5-year research project (2021-2025) funded by the European Research Council Advanced Grant scheme and led by Professor Catherine R. Schenk at the University of Oxford. The overall objective is to analyse the changing shape of international banking networks across the 20th century using an innovative methodology that allows greater specificity and inclusion than ever before. The bilateral correspondent banking network that will be uncovered by GloCoBank was the structure on which the global financial system was built and on which the trade and specialization that drove global development was based, but we know very little about it. GloCoBank will create and analyse a new set of data and combine it with extensive archival research, which will allow a much more granular assessment of the patterns and dynamics of international banking and payments.

The data will capture the links between thousands of individual banks involved in international payments through bilateral correspondent banking contracts across 130 years.

The Role

Reporting to the Principal Investigator, Professor Catherine Schenk, the post holders will be members of a research group for an ERC-funded project on international bank networks in the 20th Century (GloCoBank). They will be attached to a research stream that will carry out data analysis related to the correspondent banking relationships of international banks from 1870-2000. They will use advanced statistical analysis and relevant software to prepare the data and develop visualisation and network analysis of the many thousands of correspondent banking links recorded in published sources during this period. They will work alongside a cohort of three to five Post-Doctoral researchers and have the opportunity to present and publish their research findings and take a full part in the scholarly community at University of Oxford.

Queries about the post should be addressed to Catherine R. Schenk, Professor of Economic and Social History, Catherine.schenk@history.ox.ac.uk. All enquiries will be treated in strict confidence; they will not form part of the selection decision.

Responsibilities

- Manage own academic research and administrative activities. This involves small scale project management, to co-ordinate multiple aspects of work to meet deadlines
- Adapt existing and develop new research methodologies and materials
- Prepare working theories and analyse qualitative and/or quantitative data from a variety of sources, reviewing and refining theories as appropriate
- Contribute ideas for new research projects
- Develop ideas for generating research income, and present detailed research proposals to senior researchers
- Collaborate in the preparation of research publications, and book chapters
- Present papers at conferences or public meetings
- Act as a source of information and advice to other members of the group on methodologies or procedures
- Represent the research group at external meetings/seminars, either with other members of the group or alone
- Carry out collaborative projects with colleagues in partner institutions, and research groups

Pre-employment screening

All offers of employment are made subject to standard pre-employment screening, as applicable to the post.

If you are offered the post, you will be asked to provide proof of your right-to-work, your identity, and we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration (so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities so that we can discuss appropriate adjustments with you), and a declaration of any unspent criminal convictions.

We advise all applicants to read the candidate notes on the University's pre-employment screening procedures, found at: www.ox.ac.uk/about/jobs/preemploymentscreening/.

Selection criteria

Applications will be judged only against the criteria which are set out below. You should make sure that your application shows very clearly how your skills and experience meet these criteria. We are committed to fairness, consistency and transparency in selection decisions. Chairs of selection committees will be aware of the principles of equality of opportunity and fair selection and there will be both female and male members of the selection committee. Selection committees will explicitly take into account any career breaks or other factors, such as part-time working or disability, which may have had an impact on the quantity of candidates' publications.

Essential selection criteria

- Hold a relevant PhD/Pphil, together with relevant experience
- Possess sufficient specialist knowledge in the discipline to work within established research programmes: this may include expertise in geography, financial history or another cognate discipline.
- Demonstrable experience and expertise in advanced statistical methods, programming and geographic/networking software as applied to large datasets (including R, GIS, network analysis)
- Ability to manage own academic research and associated activities
- Previous experience of contributing to publications/presentations
- Ability to contribute ideas for new research projects and research income generation
- Excellent communication skills, including the ability to write for publication, present research proposals and results, and represent the research group at meetings

Desirable selection criteria

- Experience of independently managing a discrete area of a research project
- Experience of actively collaborating in the development of research articles for publication

- Willingness to undertake additional training in research methods as required.

About the University of Oxford

Welcome to the University of Oxford. We aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

We believe our strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, while providing all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is our strength, vital for innovation and creativity, we aspire to build a truly diverse community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While we have long traditions of scholarship, we are also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities.
